Table of Contents A simple filling of the blank space exercise with simple verbs so that students have to select the correct one and change it to the past tense to complete the sentence correctly. In addition, a brief understanding of the reading. This irregular verbs worksheet helps students learn and practice 10 irregular verbs common in the past and present tense. Students begin with a classification and correspondence exercise in which they organize irregular verbs into current and past tense forms and then match the corresponding forms of each verb. Students continue to do a gap-filling exercise where they complete sentences with present and past tense verbs. Students then answer ten simple questions using the ten verbs, writing their answers as sentences. Finally, students create three questions using irregular verbs from the worksheet and then ask and answer questions with a partner. Here is a fun irregular verbs game for students to play in class to help them practice past tense irregular verbs. First, students change ten irregular verbs present in their past form and write them in their battle grid. In pairs, students then take turns to find their opponent's battles (irregular verbs) by calling the grid coordinates at the bottom of their worksheet. If the square is empty, their opponent says "Miss" and the square is marked with an "X". If the square contains a letter, their opponent says "Hit". The student then reveals the letter and the other student reveals it in their grid and has another turn to find a past irregular verb he has been hit by. The student tries to sink their opponent's ship and the irregular verb correctly in a simple past sentence. If your opponent sinks all of your ships, you are the winner! Here is a basic irregular verbs game for students to play in class to help students remember past simple irregular verbs. Students take turns to turn a basic irregular verb form and a simple past irregular verb tab. The purpose of the game is to find matching pairs of infinite and past simple irregular verbs. If a student turns two matching cards, e.g., Awake and Awake, the student holds the cards and scores a point. The student can then score an extra point using the irregular verb passed in a sentence. If the two cards do not match, the student returns them. The student with the highest score at the end of the game is the winner. In this series of free irregular verbs activities, students play a pelmanism game where they match infinitives and past simple irregular verbs together. Students then practice asking and answering simple questions with verbs. First, in pairs, students play the game of pelmanism where they alternate to turn two irregular verb cards. If a student flips a pair of infinite irregular verbs and simple pastes, he keeps the two cards and has another turn. The student with the highest number of cards at the end of the game wins. After that, students will answer questions on a worksheet using the simple irregular verbs of the first activity. Students will type short answers into the worksheet boxes in random order. Students then work with a new partner. Students exchange their answer sheets and take them in turn to guess why their partner wrote the words or phrases in the squares. They do it by doing and answering simple questions. When a student finds out what an answer refers to, they delete it. Students then report their findings to the class, a challenging game of irregular verbs to help students practice the three forms of the 20 most common irregular verbs in the English language. The purpose of the game game of irregular verbs is to help students remember past simple irregular verbs. It consists of 20 irregular verbs and 20 numbered cards. Each card has a verb in the past tense and a matching verb in the present tense. The student turns over a card and asks their partner to guess the present tense verb. If the student guesses correctly, they get a point. If they guess incorrectly, the student turns the card back over and asks another student to guess. The student with the most points at the end of the game wins. Here is a fun irregular verbs game for students to play in class to help them practice past tense irregular verbs. First, students write answers to questions from the first exercise on their worksheet without using bold words, such as: When was the last time you went shopping? I was at the mall and I bought a pair of shoes. Students then take turns reading their answers to their partner. Their partner hears and decides the question each time by completing the questions on the worksheet using the irregular verbs in the past and the words in the box in their correct form. When both students have written the questions, they check their answers by reading them to their partner, who tells them if they are right or wrong. Students receive one point for each correct question. The student with the most points wins. wins.
